SENIOR ACCESS POINTS OF NORTHEAST COLORADO
COLORADO STATE UNIVERSITY EXTENSION

Senior Access Points needs feedback from Colorado residents. Colorado State University Extension is building a website to help Coloradans access aging-related information and supports in their communities. It is difficult to locate critical community resources when needed. We want to simplify the process through this website. Your input can help us understand more about what website content would be most helpful for our Colorado communities.

Senior Access Points is a joint effort between Colorado State University Extension and CSU Department of Human Development and Family Studies. Our project seeks to connect older adults and caregivers in Colorado to resources for aging well.

Surveys will be accepted through mid-May. Please click here and complete the survey: https://colostate.az1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_cCN2nLQaoeVhsq2 For a paper copy of the survey, please contact Gisele Jefferson at 970-345-2287, Joy Akey at 970-332-4151 or McKayla Stephen at 719-346-5571.

CSU Source article describes more of the background, efforts and impacts of Senior Access Points, along with the statewide expansion.
